Summary: A UNSC colony ship is attacked by Batarian slavers, creating a less than ideal first contact scenario. However, several centuries of peace to play around with Forerunner tech has given the UNSC, and its allies, quite a few tricks up their sleeves. My first attempt at writing something. Sorry if it really sucks. Prepare for me to butcher grammar.

ONI Classified

_Alliance Councilors, _

_ Last week, the ONI prowler _Hidden Blade_ spotted an unknown alien fleet. Long range scanning revealed the ships were centuries old. Computer security systems were primitive, so the shipboard AI hacked into the ship's systems. What the AI found is attached to this file. The aliens appear to be called Quarrians. After they unsuccessfully tried to exterminate a race of AI's they created, they were forced to live on a fleet of ships. They appear to have been part of a "Galactic Council", led by Asari, Turians, Salarrians, and

_Detailed genetic information on these races is attached below. However, I can tell you that the "humans" in the Council have 99.73% of the same genetic material as us. ONI prowlers are being directed to the area of space this "Council" has control over. They await your orders._
